

Write a paragraph explaining what we discovered through the activity and discussion of isometries of the plane. A good paragraph will:

1. state the conclusions we came to,
2. explain how we came to those conclusions (without showing all the details of the computations),
3. and use principles of good expository writing.

A very good paragraph will also show some depth of inquiry, e.g. asking questions or making conjectures about possible generalizations.